

CULTURAL ASSET MAPPING PROJECT

CAMP

Where Does Austin's Culture Live?

CAMP: the Cultural Asset Mapping Project, is a City of Austin Economic Development Department initiative to map the places and resources that are important to your cultural identity and creative practice. Join CAMP as we develop a community-created map of what Austinites value as their cultural assets. Attend a mapping session in your district, request your own culture mapping kit, or submit your suggestion through our online map and survey.

Mapping Austin's Creativity & Culture

CAMP – The Cultural Asset Mapping Project is rolling out Summer 2016 to map the places and resources that are important to your cultural identity and creativity. With your help and input, CAMP will create a comprehensive, community-developed listing and map of Austin's cultural assets.

Through online surveys and community mapping exercises, CAMP will develop a series of maps and directories highlighting cultural assets in each of the 10 council districts. At the end of the survey period, CAMP will publish its newly-created culture directory on the City of Austin's Open Data Portal (data.austintexas.gov).

Online Map & Survey

Visit our CAMP site at www.austintexas.gov/culturemapping to view our online map of cultural assets already collected or submitted through CAMP. Browse existing points and take our online survey to add your own points to the CAMP map.

District Meetings

CAMP will be going to each of the 10 council districts to conduct a public meeting and CAMP mapping session. At these meetings, residents will engage in a discussion about existing cultural assets and to begin to locate any assets that have not yet been identified or are important to you.

Create Your Own

Check out the final dataset of what Austinites have identified as cultural assets on the City of Austin's Open data portal at data.austintexas.gov. The final community-created dataset will be published once the survey period wraps up in fall 2016 and we hope inspires your own use of the information and your own culture maps. Sign up for the Cultural Arts Division E-newsletters at www.austincreates.com to find out about our data debut.
