LEWIS: Q So you had no reason to believe from the beginning of the conversation when you called the Cantus that they were concerned parents? There was they gave you no reason to believe that at the beginning of that phone call? A They made statements that indicated that they were concerned. However, based on the information that I had, and the fact that I didn't believe that a lot of their statements made logical sense, they seemed like evasive answers to me rather than pure concern for their child. I had an officer as an eyewitness to that had identified Roberto Cantu as the driver and therefore, it would be not uncommon for a suspect of a of a crime to make evasive statements or to try to deflect the attention towards a different issue.
