PURPOSE

I. Purpose

To establish a consistent policy for processing written communications using electronic communication devices.

POLICY

II. Policy

Existing and emerging electronic communications technologies have become an integral part of the ability of City employees to efficiently and effectively conduct City business. Such technology has the potential to enhance employee productivity and provide a higher level of service to the citizens of Austin. However, with such technology in the work environment, the City must ensure it continues to meet its legal obligations with respect to public information and records retention. To that end, the following protocol will be followed:

- City employees must use City accounts to transmit written communications involving City business whenever feasible.
- If circumstances require employees to use personal communication device accounts to communicate regarding City business, the communications, which include but not limited to e-mail messages, text messages, images and attachments, should be forwarded to City accounts, unless there is no administrative value in retaining the communication.

- To determine whether a written communication involves City business and must be forwarded, City employees should consult the applicable records retention schedule and forward only those communications that fall into a category of retention that is greater than the Administrative Value (“AV”) designation.
- Once a communication has been forwarded to a City account, the communication should be maintained according to the applicable records retention schedule. Any application needed to facilitate this transfer of information back to a city account is the responsibility of the employee and their service provider.
- Department Directors should ensure that this administrative policy is communicated to all department employees and have latitude to decide how that communication should occur (department meeting, training, supervisor meetings, etc).

DEFINITIONS

III. Definitions

Administrative Value (AV): The Administrative Value retention period is generally associated with routine or administrative business documents. The retention period is tied to the usefulness of the records for the conduct of current or future administrative business.
